

INFORMATION FOR SUPERVISORS

Should an employee disclose something to you, take a moment to remind them of their ability to access confidential resources.

Please consider the following when an employee is reporting directly to you:

- If they are in immediate danger, call base security or 911.
- If they need emergency medical care, call 911 or help them get to a medical provider as soon as possible.
- Other than safety and health-related questions, refrain from asking for details.
- Contact a SARC for further reporting guidance and access to available confidential resources.
- Be supportive and non-judgmental. Don't assume that you know what is best. Support their ability to make their own decisions.
- Recognize that they may have necessary follow-up appointments and ensure only those with a legitimate need-to-know are informed of reasons for absence.

Am I required to tell my supervisor?

As a civilian, you are not required to tell your supervisor. If you choose to inform your supervisor, be advised that they may or may not be required to report to leadership.

If I'm not eligible to file a DoD report, then what does this mean for me?

Regardless of eligibility, SARCs and SAPR VAs are able to provide you with immediate non-clinical crisis support and access to confidential resources. They can also inform you of your options and link you to civilian resources. Lastly, having an understanding of the DoD reporting options and available resources will facilitate your ability to decide what civilian resources you would like to receive.

SAPR PROGRAM OVERVIEW

As a part of the Navy workforce, it is important for you to understand the sexual assault reporting options and your eligibility for services as a civilian or contractor in order to help you decide how to proceed after an assault. If you are a supervisor, this brochure will also provide you with information on resources and options if an employee discloses that they were sexually assaulted.

The Navy's Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) Program is designed to meet the needs of victims. Services are primarily available to service members and eligible dependents over the age of 18. Additionally, Department of Defense (DoD) civilians and DoD contractors who work OCONUS or in contingency areas of operation are eligible to receive limited SAPR services. Lastly, foreign national civilian employees can also receive limited SAPR services from a SARC and SAPR VA involving immediate crisis intervention and referral to confidential resources.

Sexual Assault Defined

Intentional sexual contact is characterized by the use of force, threats, intimidation or abuse of authority, or when the victim does not or cannot consent (DoDI 6495.02, Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) Program Procedures, May 24, 2017).

Sexual Assault Response Coordinators

Sexual Assault Response Coordinators (SARCs) ensure installations have effective victim response that is available to victims 24/7.

SAPR Victim Advocates

SAPR VAs are trained civilian employees or unit volunteers who are committed to providing victim advocacy services that support and foster independent decision-making while enabling victims to find their own path to healing:

- Respond immediately to victims of sexual assault
- Provide information and explain reporting options
- Help victims navigate the reporting and support process
- Accompany victims during medical, investigative and legal procedures
- Make referrals for military and community assistance

REPORTING OPTIONS

The DoD offers two types of reporting options for eligible victims of sexual assault. SARCs and SAPR VAs are available to provide information on these options to assist victims in their decision-making process and help them access confidential resources.
